

Miyuki Hirose received B.E. and M.E, and the Doctor degrees in engineering from Tokyo Denki University in 2012 and 2014 (with honor), and 2017, respectively. She was an Assistant Professor with Tokyo Denki University, from 2017 to 2021, where she engaged in an educational program, "Project for Establishing a Nationwide Practical Education Network for IT Human Resources Development - Education Network for Practical Information Technologies (enPiT)," aiming at nurturing advanced IT human resources. She is currently an Associate Professor in the Department of Electrical and Electronic Engineering, Kyushu Institute of Technology. Her research interests lie in the area of mobile communication, physical layer security, and underwater radio communication.